FOR STUDENTS, A GARAGE PERMIT IS JUST AN EXTRA COUPLE OF DOLLARS A DAY

Houston, Jan. 10, 2013 – Attention students: Would you park in one of the University of Houston’s spacious new parking garages if it only cost you an extra $2.64 a day?

Garage spots are plentiful and spacious. More than 1,000 garage permits are still available. And for a student who currently has an economy permit, the cost to upgrade to a garage permit for the spring semester averages out to $13.22 a week – or just $2.64 a day, not counting weekends.

What will $2.64 buy you? It won't get you a gallon of gas. It won't pay for a frappuccino. It will get you two items off the dollar menu at any fast-food restaurant, or two items off the shelf at a dollar store. In other words, it won’t get you much. But it will get you a prime parking spot in a covered garage here on campus.

Upgrade now and save yourself the time and hassle. Permits for the Stadium and East garages are available for purchase now. Sign up at www.uh.edu/parking and click on the “Permit Registration” link. You can also request to be placed on the list for the Welcome Center Garage by clicking on the “Add/Edit Waitlists” link.
