

CROSSING

BORDERS

People, Crime, and

Enforcement Flows

The Center for Law and Human Behavior at the University of Texas at El Paso cordially invites our local homeland security enterprise stakeholders to attend our Homeland Security Symposium titled: Crossing Borders: People, Crime, and Enforcement Flows.

This symposium is part of our Homeland Security Symposium Series focused on addressing supplemental educational/training needs within different homeland security enterprise related domains requested by our local homeland security stakeholders. There are no fees associated with this symposium for attendees. This endeavor is funded by the Office of University Programs, under the Center for Borders, Trade and Immigration Research

ABOUT THE SYMPOSIUM

This seminar - a three-part conversation on global migration trends, human smuggling operations, and the data pertaining to criminal organizations venturing into new markets - will explore the current conditions that are impacting or shaping human mobility at the global level, to then report on the evidence that researchers have identified as connected to human smuggling and trafficking, and finally analyze what the data say about transnational criminal trends.

The seminar will consist of three short lectures followed by Q&A sessions with attendees, where we will compare, contrast and supplement data available on criminal trends along borders, and migration and anthropological and sociological research on people, crime and capital flows.

The Center for Law and Human Behavior

The Center for Law and Human Behavior is a focal point at The University of Texas at El Paso for extramural research in the social and behavioral sciences. At the CLHB, faculty interested in pursuing funded research will find the expertise and support they need to help them refine their ideas, craft competitive proposals, and manage their grants once they are awarded. The CLHB also serves as a community of scholars and helps identify common interests and research themes among faculty and students for multidisciplinary research and inquiry.

The CLHB strives to develop relationships with government and non-profit stakeholders in areas such as criminal justice, behavioral health, substance abuse, and program evaluation to help improve the delivery of services to citizens in the Paso Del Norte region and beyond.
