Year in Review (AY 2009-2010)

A commitment to strengthening institutional relationships, advancing new research, and providing original disciplinary and service opportunities for students remained salient priorities for African American Studies during the 2009-2010 academic year.

As part of our ongoing research initiatives, the Center for the Study of African American Culture (CSAAC) hosted a symposium and film festival on Black images in the media and art. The symposium brought together scholars, independent filmmakers, and artists from across the country to discuss issues surrounding the prevalence, problems, and preservation of Black images in film. CSAAC remains dedicated to its tradition of conducting research on Africana life and culture and looks forward to supporting the symposium on Black images in the media for a second year this coming spring, April 14-16, 2011. CSAAC also coordinated a guest lecture on Africana advances in space exploration featuring Dr. Edward Tunstel of Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Tunstel is the Space Robotics and Autonomous Control Lead in the Space Department of the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory in Laurel, Maryland. Similarly, the Institute for African American Policy Research, a subdivision of CSAAC, held a public seminar on Black power in January. The lists of presenters included, Kathleen N. Cleaver, senior lecturer in law at Emory University.

Our program also made significant strides with respect to student advancement in research and service on both national and international fronts. With support and encouragement from this program, three African American Studies alumni entered graduate degree programs in Africana Studies. At the same time, four University of Houston students participated in the Model African Union conference at Howard University in Washington, D.C., under the direction and advisement of Mr. Paul Easterling, AAS program manager. Likewise, the strength and visibility of our study abroad and graduate certificate programs continue to provide students with advanced approaches to critical issues shaping the discipline. In the summer of 2010, seventeen University of Houston students received funding to study abroad in Ghana, West Africa, at the University of Ghana, University of Cape Coast, and Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology. On the other hand, the number of students actively pursuing the graduate certificate in African American Studies has nearly doubled in the past two years. Each of these facts bode well for AAS as the program seeks to both maintain and move in new directions in the near future.

As we advance into the 2010-2011 academic year, AAS would like to welcome Dr. John Roberts, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences and Professor in the Department of English, to the University of Houston.

In closing, our primary job remains to educate and graduate students at U of H. By moving these ideas forward, we look to bring forth stewardship and good fellowship for our goals and objectives.

Sincerely,

Malachi D. Crawford

AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES is a distinct academic discipline that engages Africa-centered research and teaching through an interdisciplinary approach to scholarly inquiry. The term Africa-centered signifies that the epistemological starting point for scholarly analysis resides in the historical and cultural understanding that African people are people of the African continent regardless of the recency or geographical distance of their out migration from the African homeland.

Employing tools from the humanities and social sciences for academic study, research, and teaching, African American Studies explores the varied dimensions of the human experience -- that is, phenomena, ideas, events, peoples, and personalities -- from the perspective of the interests of African people in the United States and their relationship to themselves and to African and other peoples in the world.

Hence, the mission of African American Studies is to provide students with a comprehensive quality undergraduate and graduate education and the opportunity for a creative intellectual experience based on the critical and systematic study of the life, thought, and practice of African peoples in their current and historical unfolding.

Interdisciplinary in both conception and practice, African American Studies seeks to critically examine and understand the African experience from an African-centered perspective, that is, from a position internal to the culture, joined with an openness and receptivity to the rich variety and instructiveness of the total human experience. African American Studies stresses comparative analysis and holistic thinking as indispensable to the discipline and the general educational enterprise.
The Goals of African American Studies

1. To expand our degree offerings by transitioning from a program to a tenure-granting department, and, thus, recruit a faculty that will enable the department to introduce a baccalaureate major degree in the discipline at the University of Houston;

2. To cultivate and increase the awareness of UH students to international and cultural pluralism and to stimulate their sensitivity to issues of culture, race, ethnicity, class, and gender;

3. To further internationalize the Africana Studies curriculum to include the study of African peoples in other parts of the world in addition to those on the Continent and in the United States, i.e., in the Caribbean, Central and South America, Asia, Europe, and the Pacific Rim;

4. To encourage expanded scholarly productivity and professional activity by the department’s faculty to maintain currency with the latest developments in the discipline and insure the highest levels of instruction and intellectual exchange;

5. To increase the holding of conferences, seminars, colloquia, and other fora devoted to the expansion of the discipline;

6. To develop and maintain links with local high schools and community colleges;

7. To maintain and strengthen existing links with the community through expanding joint educational and practical projects and exchanges;

8. To increase the utility of academic service to Houston’s African American community through research and publication on historical and public policy issues by means of The Black Houston History Project and the Institute for African American Policy Research;

9. To expand and further consolidate the intellectual space of the discipline as an integral and indispensable part of the university’s mission to offer a culturally pluralistic quality undergraduate and graduate education to its students.
Minor in African American Studies

A minor in African American Studies requires a minimum of 18 semester hours, including AAS 2320: Introduction to African American Studies, and AAS 4370: Seminar in African American Studies; Six additional hours in AAS and the humanities, fine arts, or communication courses; and Six hours in AAS and social science fields of study. Twelve of the 18 hours must be in residence. Twelve of the 18 hours must be in AAS courses. Twelve hours must be advanced, at least six of which must be in residence. A minimum 2.00 grade point average for all courses applied to the minor is required.

Students may obtain a complete list of courses approved for this minor in the office of the African American Studies Program, 629 Agnes Arnold Hall. Briefly, students may fulfill the humanities, fine arts, and communication portion of this minor with approved courses in African American Studies, art history, English, history, journalism, music, and theatre (including appropriate selected special topics courses). Students may fulfill the social science portion of this minor with approved courses in African American Studies, economics, political science, psychology, and sociology.

AAS Graduate Certificate Program

The Graduate Certificate in African American Studies is a nine-hour disciplinary concentration open to students in all UH graduate and professional degree programs. It is also open to post baccalaureate professionals (including teachers, social service providers, policymakers, and others) interested in enhancing their knowledge and understanding of Africana phenomena.

The graduate concentration in African American Studies introduces students to advanced discussions, analyses, theoretical perspectives, and research methodologies in the discipline of Africana Studies. In addition, it provides intellectual breadth to a student’s course of study, increasing the depth and coherence of the student’s work within her/his primary field of study on critical issues concerning Africana phenomena.

(For more info, see Appendix B)

AAS Graduate Certificate Courses:

AAS 6300: Africana Studies Theory and Method
The course explores critical issues in research theory and methods in Africana Studies, including issues in research designs and tools of analysis. (3 hours)

AAS 6307: Seminar on Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcolm X
The course is a critical study and analysis of the major ideas and doctrines that formed the conceptual frameworks of these two men. It engages explorations of cultural pluralism, self-determination, Pan Africanism, satygraha, nonviolence, civil disobedience, reform, and revolution. (3 hours)

AAS 6308: Africana Religion and Biography
The course examines Africana religion in the United States, interrogating Christian, Islamic, Hebrew, and traditional African forms by means that include auto/biographies of representative and influential figures. (3 hours)
Programs for Undergraduate Students

Summer International Study Program—Ghana, West Africa (Summer Session IV, annually):

UH students take three (3) or six (6) credit hours of African American Studies courses that integrate lectures by Ghanaian academics at the University of Ghana, University of Cape Coast, and Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology with work at the University of Houston. Study includes educational travel. In 2010, seventeen University of Houston students were provided with funding to participate in this rich and fulfilling program: Oluwakemi Akeredolu, Fred Bryant, Jr., Quaniqua Carthan, Jahnin Davis, Brian Harris, Randryia Houston, Le Huang, Janae Ladet, Hannah McConn, Deidra Motton, Craig Nelson, John Nicklos II, Nwabundo Okongwu, Nwadiogo Okongwu, Angel Rhoden-Lewis, Whitney Welch, and Alexanderia Wilkerson. In all, since 2003 the African American Studies Program has sponsored over sixty students to travel to Ghana and continues to encourage students to be internationally minded in this increasingly global world.
Ankh Maat Wedjau Honor Society

The African American Studies Program at the University of Houston has reestablished its chapter of the Ankh Maat Wedjau National Honor Society of the National Council for Black Studies. The overall mission of the Songhai Chapter of the Ankh Maat Wedjau Honor Society is to establish a strong foundation of knowledge and wisdom in the field of Africana/Black Studies at the University of Houston. It is the hope that the knowledge and wisdom shared will help students to grow within themselves academically, mentally and spiritually. The goal in this would be to grasp conceptually the interconnectedness of African people world wide and to stimulate conversation and thought.

VCU Undergraduate Conference on Black Psychology

Since the spring of 2009, African American Studies at the University of Houston has supported undergraduate student travel to the Black Psychology Undergraduate Conference at the Student Commons, on VCU’s Monroe Park Campus, Richmond, Virginia. The Departments of Psychology and African American Studies at Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU) partnered with Virginia State University (VSU) and the Institute for African American Mental Health Research and Training to host the conference each year. The conference highlights the outstanding research of undergraduate students at partnering institutions and to promote leadership and community engagement among the participants.

National Council for Black Studies Conference (Third Week in March, annually):

The National Council for Black Studies is the leading organization of Black/Africana Studies professionals in the world. In addition to establishing standards of excellence within the discipline, NCBS serves as a major outlet for the scholarly dissemination of African-centered knowledge and modes of inquiry regarding the life and experiences of African people. UH students are encouraged to attend and present research-based papers at the annual conference. In the past, AAS minors have presented papers and achieved academic distinction such as placement in the NCBS Student Essay Competition.
In pursuit of our broad mandate to advance excellence in academic research, undergraduate and graduate education, and intellectual exchange and service within the University and Houston communities, the African American Studies Program at the University of Houston annually invites for a year-long visiting appointment two scholars whose demonstrated research and teaching are in the discipline of Africana Studies/Africalogy. Scholars whose research and teaching are, however, in other disciplinary areas will also be considered. Visiting Scholars add to the richness and diversity of our undergraduate curriculum in Africalogy by teaching one course of their own design. In addition, the program prioritizes applications from scholars who demonstrate a commitment to generating research and publication in the discipline of Africana Studies/Africalogy. Successful candidates are, therefore, afforded an opportunity to add to the ongoing scholarship in the discipline by working toward the completion of a research project. The Visiting Scholars Program is designed to encourage new scholars to contribute fresh and innovative teaching and research in the discipline of Africalogy.

2009-2010 AAS Visiting Scholars

Ayana R. Abdallah, Ph.D., was one of two African American Studies Visiting Scholars for the 2009-2010 academic year. Dr. Abdallah, a lecturer in English at Morgan State University, explores the intersections of gender, sex, and race configured in women’s creativity, spirituality, culture, and criticism in the African Diaspora within her scholarship.

The 2009-2010 academic year proved to be highly rewarding for Dr. Abdallah, as she endeavored to build relationships with students, other departments, and potential publication outlets for her ongoing research. Her spring 2010 course, “Writing Black Women’s Radical Future: Readings in Octavia Butler,” was a huge success, and she is currently in the process of cross-listing the course with the English and Women Studies departments. Consistently, Dr. Abdallah continues to edit and revise her forthcoming manuscript on Octavia Butler.

African American Studies selected Dr. Michael Tillotson as one of two AAS Visiting Scholars for the 2009-2010 academic year. Professor Tillotson is a May 2008 graduate of the PhD program in African American Studies at Temple University.

For the fall 2009 semester, Dr. Tillotson taught a new course in African American Studies, AAS 3307: Africana Spiritual Transformation in the Social Sciences. Dr. Tillotson’s research interests center on the impact of ideas such as color-blindness, race neutrality, post-modernism, and essentialism on the lives of African people.

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS

Journal in African American Studies

_Africana Studies, A Review of Social Science Research_: A new peer-reviewed academic annual serial published by Transaction Publishers in New Brunswick, New Jersey, the new journal offers an important contribution to research and scholarship in the discipline of Africana Studies. The annual serial’s inaugural issue will be published in 2004.

Monograph Series

_African American Studies monograph series, Transaction Publishers_: The series features original studies and recovery works within the discipline of Africana Studies.

_African Americans in the American West monograph series, University Press of Colorado_: The series publishes original studies and recovery works on the Africana experience in the western United States from diverse disciplinary perspectives.

Public Policy Research Initiatives

_The Black Houston History Project_: An initiative committed to the research, study, and preservation of the history of African American people and institutions in the city of Houston, Texas, from the nineteenth through the twentieth centuries.

_Center for the Study of African American Culture_: Approved by the University’s Division of Research, the Center for the Study of African American Culture is committed to interdisciplinary research revived in the multiple dimensions of African American life and culture.

_Visiting Scholars Program_: Each year, at least two scholars from across the Untied States participate in a one-year visiting appointment in African American Studies. They teach one course of their own design while working toward the completion of a research project. The Visiting Scholars Program is designed to encourage new scholars to contribute new and innovative teaching and research in the discipline of Africana Studies.
New Publications in African American Studies

AAS Faculty Publications

In the fall of 2009, James L. Conyers, Jr., University Professor and director of African American Studies, co-edited The Frederick Douglass Encyclopedia (Greenwood) with Julius E. Thompson and Nancy J. Dawson. The encyclopedia offers more than 100 alphabetically organized entries covering Douglass’s extraordinary journey from childhood in bondage to forceful spokesperson for equality and freedom before, during, and after the Civil War. In addition to biographical details, the book looks at the full breadth of Douglass’s writings and speeches, as well as the events that shaped his intellect and political views. Together, these entries create an enduring portrait of one of the nation’s most iconic figures, a man who went from slavery to invited guest in Abraham Lincoln’s White House, whose commitment to freedom for all led to his participation in the first women’s rights conference at Seneca Falls, and whose profound influence ranged well beyond the borders of the United States.

The Adinkra Collection

As part of its ongoing commitment to advancing creative discussions, theoretical perspectives, and research methodologies in the discipline of Africana Studies, the African American Studies program initiated The Adinkra Collection, an archival collection of over 2,000 digitized photographs of Ghanaian life and culture taken by AAS Nkrumah Scholars. The collection provides a resource for developing a digital classroom on the history of the African Diaspora, as well as engaging faculty and students with communities in West Africa.

The Architecture of Enslavement

In the fall 2009 issue of Ujima, Nkrumah Study Abroad Scholars use digital photography to show how Europeans brought together space, spirit, and force to edify the enslavement of African people in Ghana. Note: These calculations use a modified version of the Leaver Rate, which is used by the National Center for Education Statistics. The method calculates graduation rates by dividing the total number of African American Studies (AAS) minors graduating during a given year by the total number of AAS minors that have graduated, been discontinued and suspended during that same year.

Note: These calculations use a modified version of the Leaver Rate, which is used by the National Center for Education Statistics. The method calculates graduation rates by dividing the total number of African American Studies (AAS) minors graduating during a given year by the total number of AAS minors that have graduated and have been discontinued during that same year. Because suspended students (i.e., those students whose records are still “active” in the UH system, but who cannot enroll in courses for a semester or year) still have the ability to continue their education at UH, removing them from the calculation here provides a more accurate assessment of AAS minor graduation rates.

It should also be noted that many factors impact the graduation rates of AAS minors at the University of Houston. The University of Houston is essentially a commuter campus, hosting primarily non-traditional students in a major metropolitan city. As such, the current global economic downturn that began in 2007 and present domestic recession might explain the increased number of discontinued students during the 2007-2008 academic year.
