We are proud to present another edition of our annual report. This publication has served as a valuable tool to share information and provide updates concerning the perspective of the African American Studies Program (AAS) at the University of Houston. Hence, my message is short and succinct.

Reflective of our priorities, AAS has aggregated a common sense of tradition with activities such as: the Annual Scholarship Banquet; the Study Abroad Program to Ghana, West Africa; the Annual Africans Speakers Bureau; Africans History Month; and the Annual Africans Studies Research Symposium. Moreover, the year was successful. Yet, examining the 2008-2009 academic year and assessing how the program can become better requires reflection and analytic thinking.

We often take for granted the need for establishing a sense of tradition regarding continuity, tenacity, and creative efforts to study Africans phenomena on a global and national level. Simply put, it is with a team approach—postured from an Africans-centered perspective—that our staff receives incentive to exhibit a collective and community spirit. Thus, the concept of participation with the academy is constant, but necessitates a firmament of vigil.

In closing, the mission and goal of the African American Studies Program at the University of Houston remains unshaken: to educate, disseminate, defend, challenge, encourage, mentor, and service citizens of the campus and greater Houston community. Agoo-Amen, Nzuri Sana, Shemhotep!

James L. Conyers, Jr.

African American Studies Program, Director
Center for the Study of African American Studies
University Professor of African American Studies
AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES is a distinct academic discipline that engages Africa-centered research and teaching through an interdisciplinary approach to scholarly inquiry. The term Africa-centered signifies that the epistemological starting point for scholarly analysis resides in the historical and cultural understanding that African people are people of the African continent regardless of the recency or geographical distance of their out migration from the African homeland.

Employing tools from the humanities and social sciences for academic study, research, and teaching, African American Studies explores the varied dimensions of the human experience -- that is, phenomena, ideas, events, peoples, and personalities -- from the perspective of the interests of African people in the United States and their relationship to themselves and to African and other peoples in the world.

Hence, the mission of African American Studies is to provide students with a comprehensive quality undergraduate and graduate education and the opportunity for a creative intellectual experience based on the critical and systematic study of the life, thought, and practice of African peoples in their current and historical unfolding.

Interdisciplinary in both conception and practice, African American Studies seeks to critically examine and understand the African experience from an African-centered perspective, that is, from a position internal to the culture, joined with an openness and receptivity to the rich variety and instructiveness of the total human experience. African American Studies stresses comparative analysis and holistic thinking as indispensable to the discipline and the general educational enterprise.

Within this framework, the goals of African American Studies are:

1. To expand our degree offerings by transitioning from a program to a tenure-granting department, and, thus, recruit a faculty that will enable the department to introduce a baccalaureate major degree in the discipline at the University of Houston;
MISSION STATEMENT

2. To cultivate and increase the awareness of UH students to international and cultural pluralism and to stimulate their sensitivity to issues of culture, race, ethnicity, class, and gender;

3. To further internationalize the Africana Studies curriculum to include the study of African peoples in other parts of the world in addition to those on the Continent and in the United States, i.e., in the Caribbean, Central and South America, Asia, Europe, and the Pacific Rim;

4. To encourage expanded scholarly productivity and professional activity by the department’s faculty to maintain currency with the latest developments in the discipline and insure the highest levels of instruction and intellectual exchange;

5. To increase the holding of conferences, seminars, colloquia, and other fora devoted to the expansion of the discipline;

6. To develop and maintain links with local high schools and community colleges;

7. To maintain and strengthen existing links with the community through expanding joint educational and practical projects and exchanges;

8. To increase the utility of academic service to Houston’s African American community through research and publication on historical and public policy issues by means of The Black Houston History Project and the Institute for African American Policy Research;

9. To expand and further consolidate the intellectual space of the discipline as an integral and indispensable part of the university’s mission to offer a culturally pluralistic quality undergraduate and graduate education to its students.
Minor in African American Studies

A minor in African American Studies requires a minimum of 18 semester hours, including AAS 2320: Introduction to African American Studies, and AAS 4370: Seminar in African American Studies; Six additional hours in AAS and the humanities, fine arts, or communication courses; and Six hours in AAS and social science fields of study. Twelve of the 18 hours must be in residence. Twelve of the 18 hours must be in AAS courses. Twelve hours must be advanced, at least six of which must be in residence. A minimum 2.00 grade point average for all courses applied to the minor is required. Students may obtain a complete list of courses approved for this minor in the office of the African American Studies Program, 629 Agnes Arnold Hall. Briefly, students may fulfill the humanities, fine arts, and communication portion of this minor with approved courses in African American Studies, art history, English, history, journalism, music, and theatre (including appropriate selected special topics courses). Students may fulfill the social science portion of this minor with approved courses in African American Studies, economics, political science, psychology, and sociology.

The Graduate Certificate in African American Studies is a nine-hour disciplinary concentration open to students in all UH graduate and professional degree programs. It is also open to post baccalaureate professionals (including teachers, social service providers, policymakers, and others) interested in enhancing their knowledge and understanding of Africana phenomena.

The graduate concentration in African American Studies introduces students to advanced discussions, analyses, theoretical perspectives, and research methodologies in the discipline of Africana Studies. In addition, it provides intellectual breadth to a student’s course of study, increasing the depth and coherence of the student’s work within her/his primary field of study on critical issues concerning Africana phenomena.

(For more info, see Appendix B)

AAS Graduate Certificate Program

Courses:

AAS 6300: Africana Studies Theory and Method
The course explores critical issues in research theory and methods in Africana Studies, including issues in research designs and tools of analysis. (3 hours)

AAS 6307: Seminar on Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcolm X
The course is a critical study and analysis of the major ideas and doctrines that formed the conceptual frameworks of these two men. It engages explorations of cultural pluralism, self-determination, Pan Africanism, satyagraha, nonviolence, civil disobedience, reform, and revolution. (3 hours)

AAS 6308: Africana Religion and Biography
The course examines Africana religion in the United States, interrogating Christian, Islamic, Hebrew, and traditional African forms by means that include auto/biographies of representative and influential figures. (3 hours)
Programs for Undergraduate Students

Summer International Study Program—Ghana, West Africa (Summer Session IV, annually):

UH students take three (3) or six (6) credit hours of African American Studies courses that integrate lectures by Ghanaian academics at the University of Ghana, University of Cape Coast, and Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology with work at the University of Houston. Study includes educational travel. In 2009, thirteen University of Houston students, Gabriel Ashcroft, Jasmine Black, Ariel Brinkley, Crystal Edwards, Kaine Hampton, Randryia Houston, Christian Jackson, Ant Kwakye, Hannah McConn, Christine Paul, Brandon Pittman, Porsché Randall, and Tamara Spiller were provided with funding to participate in this rich and fulfilling program. In all, since 2003 the African American Studies Program has sponsored over forty students to travel to Ghana and continues to encourage students to be internationally minded in this increasingly global world.
Ankh Maat Wedjau Honor Society

In the spring of 2008 the African American Studies Program at the University of Houston reestablished its chapter of the Ankh Maat Wedjau National Honor Society of the National Council for Black Studies. The overall mission of the Songhai Chapter of the Ankh Maat Wedjau Honor Society is to establish a strong foundation of knowledge and wisdom in the field of Africana/Black Studies at the University of Houston. It is the hope that the knowledge and wisdom shared will help students to grow within themselves academically, mentally and spiritually. The goal in this would be to grasp conceptually the interconnectedness of African people world wide and to stimulate conversation and thought.

National Model African Union - Washington, DC (First Week in March, annually):

Every spring the African American Studies Program sends a team of University of Houston international scholars to Washington D.C. to participate in the annual Model African Union conference sponsored by Howard University. This conference hosts 30-40 different universities every year with each institution bringing anywhere from 4-10 students with them to engage in the mock sessions of the African Union. Given this, the Model African Union conference is an excellent way for student to network with other universities, network with other students from around the country and gain international experience which is vital for a growing global world.

National Council for Black Studies Conference (Third Week in March, annually):

The National Council for Black Studies is the leading organization of Black/Africana Studies professionals in the world. In addition to establishing standards of excellence within the discipline, NCBS serves as a major outlet for the scholarly dissemination of African-centered knowledge and modes of inquiry regarding the life and experiences of African people. UH students are encouraged to attend and present research-based papers at the annual conference. In the past, AAS minors have presented papers and achieved academic distinction such as placement in the NCBS Student Essay Competition.
In pursuit of our broad mandate to advance excellence in academic research, undergraduate and graduate education, and intellectual exchange and service within the University and Houston communities, the African American Studies Program at the University of Houston annually invites for a year-long visiting appointment two scholars whose demonstrated research and teaching are in the discipline of Africana Studies/Africalogy. Scholars whose research and teaching are, however, in other disciplinary areas will also be considered. Visiting Scholars add to the richness and diversity of our undergraduate curriculum in Africalogy by teaching one course of their own design. In addition, the program prioritizes applications from scholars who demonstrate a commitment to generating research and publication in the discipline of Africana Studies/Africalogy. Successful candidates are, therefore, afforded an opportunity to add to the ongoing scholarship in the discipline by working toward the completion of a research project. The Visiting Scholars Program is designed to encourage new scholars to contribute fresh and innovative teaching and research in the discipline of Africalogy.

2008-2009 AAS Visiting Scholars

Professor Carroll Parrott Blue is one of two African American Studies Visiting Scholars for the 2008-2009 academic year. Professor Blue, professor emeritus at San Diego State University’s School of Theatre, Television and Film, is a nationally and internationally recognized and respected filmmaker, a producer, director, and writer.

Carroll Parrott Blue thanks the UH African American Studies Program for the opportunity to continue her research work during the 2007–2009 academic years. There are many beneficial results from these efforts, including an emerging UH-Third Ward Community Partnership Initiative directly supported by Provost John Antel in the UH Provost’s Office. This initiative has begun to strengthen relationships between UH and the new Ryan Middle School administration, the City of Houston’s Historic Preservation Department, and the Third Ward Community Cloth Collective.

For AAS Visiting Scholar Carroll Parrott Blue, the 2008–2009 academic year was spent deepening the digital media for community development research and consolidating relationships built during the 2007–2008 year. Blue worked with the UH Provost’s Office under the direction of Provost Antel to help establish stronger ties between UH and Third Ward. Dr. Melissa Romain is the UH/Ryan Middle School/Third Ward Partnership Initiative coordinator and Blue is a community liaison for the 2009–2010 academic year, in addition to her continuing work as a UH Research Professor.
During this year Blue worked with three professors and seven UH students from the UH School of Architecture, School of Art and the Center for Public History to successfully complete an architectural design of an art gallery and computer kiosk, a historic preservation report and contemporary photographic building documentation at Ryan Middle School and six oral histories and portraits of the Jack Yates Class of 1958 and community activists in 1958.

In 2008 – 2009 Blue hosted seven speakers and the programs were co-sponsored by The Academy Foundation, The Dawn Project, the UH Texas Learning and Computation Center and African American Studies Program, the Southwest Alternate Media Project, and the Contemporary Museum of Art Houston. Through these activities Blue has either continued or broadened AAS outreach.

In addition, Blue has obtained support and in-kind donations from the UH President’s Office, the Texas Learning and Computation Center, CLASS Dean’s Office, the African American Studies Program and the Center for Public History.

African American Studies selected Dr. Michael Tillotson as one of two AAS Visiting Scholars for the 2008-2009 academic year. Professor Tillotson is a May 2008 graduate of the PhD program in African American Studies at Temple University.

In both his scholarship and everyday life, Tillotson has remained committed to the belief that scholars in the discipline of Africana Studies must be problem solvers for African people.

For the past seven summers Tillotson has taught young people through the Upward Bound Program at the University of Louisville. Before his involvement as an instructor at Louisville, he taught Upward Bound for two summers at Indiana University. While completing his doctoral degree in Philadelphia, Tillotson worked as the programs coordinator and curriculum developer for a program called the N.U.L.I.T.E.S. – the National Urban League initiative towards excellence and success.

Although new to the ranks of the professoriate, Tillotson brings an impressive body of scholarly work with him to the University of Houston. He has a book chapter, journal article, three book reviews, an encyclopedia entry, two editorials, one radio interview, and a play in his list of publication credits at this early stage of his career.

After completing the A.A. and B.A. in Liberal Studies at Indiana University, Tillotson entered the graduate program in Africana Studies at the State University of New York-Albany where he studied advanced black psychology under Dr. Marcia Sutherland. He earned an M.A. in Albany and went on to the doctoral program in African American Studies at Temple University.
For the spring 2009 semester, Tillotson taught a new course in African American Studies, AAS 3307: Africana Spiritual Transformation in the Social Sciences. Under his direction, the course examined the development of the racial paradigm and ideas such as bigotry, prejudice, discrimination, racism and domination as socio-political philosophies that have been absorbed into societal structures and historically used to suppress the life chances and opportunities of certain members of the human family. “We go back to the 5th century and look at the development of the racial project,” Tillotson says. “Later on, we look at how [these ideas] started to imbed themselves in the institutional realities of America.”

Tillotson's research interests center on the impact of ideas such as color-blindness, race neutrality, post-modernism, and essentialism on the lives of African people, while his broader interests concern critiquing domination within the social, structural, and institutional realities of American society. Tillotson suggests that “if we accept these ideas uncritically, overtime it will lead to a collective passivity,” on the part of African people, “and further marginalize and oppress us as a people.”

Journal in African American Studies

Africana Studies, A Review of Social Science Research: A new peer-reviewed academic annual serial published by Transaction Publishers in New Brunswick, New Jersey, the new journal offers an important contribution to research and scholarship in the discipline of Africana Studies. The annual serial’s inaugural issue will be published in 2004.

Monograph Series

African American Studies monograph series, Transaction Publishers: The series features original studies and recovery works within the discipline of Africana Studies.

African Americans in the American West monograph series, University Press of Colorado: The series publishes original studies and recovery works on the Africana experience in the western United States from diverse disciplinary perspectives.

Public Policy Research Initiatives

The Black Houston History Project: An initiative committed to the research, study, and preservation of the history of African American people and institutions in the city of Houston, Texas, from the nineteenth through the twentieth centuries.

Center for the Study of African American Culture: Approved by the University’s Division of Research, the Center for the Study of African American Culture is committed to interdisciplinary research revived in the multiple dimensions of African American life and culture.

Visiting Scholars Program: Each year, at least two scholars from across the Untied States participate in a one-year visiting appointment in African American Studies. They teach one course of their own design while working toward the completion of a research project. The Visiting Scholars Program is designed to encourage new scholars to contribute new and innovative teaching and research in the discipline of Africana Studies.
In the spring of 2008, James L. Conyers, Jr., University Professor and director of African American Studies, edited the third volume of Africana Studies, the annual series published by Transaction Publishers. This edition of the serial is entitled Racial Structure & Radical Politics in the African Diaspora. Racial structures can be referred to as the study of Africana communities and their formation globally. The essays aggregated in this volume aspire to query, precipitate analysis, and offer a contribution to the forward flow of knowledge, as it pertains to social scientific approaches to describing and evaluating Africana phenomena.

CSAAC: Media Symposium on Africana Art & Film

The Black Images in the Media Symposium and Arts Festival, sponsored by the African American Studies Program’s Center for the Study of African American Culture (CSAAC) was conceived after the recent controversy involving racially insensitive statements by Keith Richards and Don Imus. Afterwards many in the media offered an analysis that blamed Black pop culture for creating a climate that facilitated such statements. With many in the African American community opining that this was yet another case of blaming the victim, the need to recognize and discuss the primary role of African American institutions in promoting positive black images also emerged. The Black Images in the Media Symposium and Arts Festival aimed to do just that. Participants had an opportunity to engage in discussion, dialogue about African American images as well as celebrate the beauty of black images.

The symposium was inclusive of some Black America’s top scholars who discussed historic, current and future issues involving African Americans on stage, in film and in music. The symposium included informative workshops for “industry” professionals on such topics as “Independent Film Production 101”, “Strategies to Preserve Stage Theatre” and “How To Get a Record Deal”. There was also a two day film festival featuring the best in film shorts, features, documentaries and music videos.

The Black Images in the Media Film Festival was held in Houston, Texas April 8-11 at the University Hilton Hotel on the campus of the University of Houston. Sponsored by the University of Houston Africana Studies Program the festival was a major activity of the Black Images in the Media Symposium and Arts Festival that involved scholars and other artists from across the country. The event provided a wonderful opportunity for networking as well as a platform for African American independent film makers to showcase their works in ways that depict positive black images.

The symposium, as a CSAAC research initiative, is focused on the presentation and publication of thematic ideas which contribute to the growth and expansion of knowledge and research in Africana life and culture. It contributes to the growth and expansion of research and publication at the University of Houston, bringing together scholars from across the country in a moderated and academic forum.
CSAAC: Research Seminar on Black Power

On January 31, 2009, African American Studies hosted a Seminar on Black Power at the Shrine of the Black Madonna. The program invited several distinguished faculty from around the nation to present critical research on the issues and people that guided the Black Power Movement. The list of presenters included Kathleen N. Cleaver, senior lecturer in law, at Emory University; Scot Brown, associate professor of history at the University of California-Los Angeles; Jane Rhodes, dean for the study of race and ethnicity and professor and chair of American Studies at Macalester College; and, Andrew P. Smallwood, assistant professor in the Center for Ethnic Studies Department of Social Sciences at the Borough of Manhattan Community College. The event was free, catered, and open to the public.

On Thursday, 14 October 2008, hosted lecture “I am Annie May’: An Extraordinary Black Texas Woman in Her Own Words” by Barbara Bullard, a Houston based independent researcher/author.

On Friday, 13 February 2009, hosted lecture “Chinua Achebe’s Blue(s) Notes: Things Fall Apart and the Blues (Aesthetic)” by Christopher Okonkwo, associate professor of English, University of Missouri-Columbia.

On Monday, 16 February 2009, hosted lecture “The Making of Modern America: The African American Diaspora” by Oscar Williams, associate professor and director of undergraduate studies in the Africana Studies Department of the University at Albany.

On Thursday, 19 February 2009, hosted lecture “African American Business History: Lost, Stolen, or Strayed?” by Robert E. Weems Jr., professor of history, University of Missouri-Columbia.

On Monday, 2 March 2009, hosted lecture “Atlantic World Combat and the Creole Label” by T. J. Desch-Obi, professor of history, Weismann School of Arts & Sciences, Baruch College.

On Tuesday, 28 April 2009, hosted lecture “On a World Tour: Issues in International Hip Hop” by Daniel Levine, doctoral candidate in religious studies at Rice University.

Note: These calculations use a modified version of the Leaver Rate, which is used by the National Center for Education Statistics. The method calculates graduation rates by dividing the total number of African American Studies (AAS) minors graduating during a given year by the total number of AAS minors that have been discontinued or suspended during that same year.

Note: These calculations use a modified version of the Leaver Rate, which is used by the National Center for Education Statistics. The method calculates graduation rates by dividing the total number of African American Studies (AAS) minors graduating during a given year by the total number of AAS minors that have been discontinued during that same year. Because suspended students (i.e., those students whose records are still “active” in the UH system, but who cannot enroll in courses for a semester or year) still have the ability to continue their education at UH, removing them from the calculation here provides a more accurate assessment of AAS minor graduation rates.

It should also be noted that many factors impact the graduation rates of AAS minors at the University of Houston. The University of Houston is essentially a commuter campus, hosting primarily non-traditional students in a major metropolitan city. As such, the current global economic downturn that began in 2007 and present domestic recession might explain the increased number of discontinued students during the 2007-2008 academic year.
