Postdoctoral Fellowship Opportunity – University of Houston

The Trauma and Anxiety Center of Houston seeks to fill a full-time, one-year clinical postdoctoral fellowship position, beginning on or before September 2017. The postdoctoral fellow will serve as Assistant Clinical Director of the Trauma and Anxiety Center of Houston, a community-oriented outpatient clinic dedicated to the provision of evidence-based assessment and treatment services for adults with anxiety and trauma-related disorders as well as co-occurring conditions (e.g., mood and substance use disorders). Responsibilities will include: conducting psychological assessments, providing individual and group therapy services, supervising doctoral students in clinical psychology, and managing administrative clinical operations. The position will provide post-doctoral clinical hours and supervision necessary for licensure. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. from an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical psychology or related discipline. Experience working with anxiety and trauma-related disorders (e.g., PTSD) is preferred. Start date is flexible. The salary and benefits package is competitive.

Interested applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and three references (names and emails/telephone numbers) to both Dr. Anka Vujanovic (aa.vujano@central.uh.edu) and Dr. Matthew Gallagher (mw.gallagher@uh.edu). Applicants should also complete an application at: https://jobs.uh.edu/postings/32830 (posting S004513). Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis and reviewed until the position is filled.

The University of Houston (UH) is the leading public research university in Houston and the second most racially/ethnically diverse university in the U.S. It is designated as a Tier One research university by the Carnegie Foundation. UH is located in close proximity to the Texas Medical Center (TMC) offering extensive opportunity for research collaboration. The University of Houston is an equal opportunity employer.