

Glass Mountain Reading at Houston Society for Performing Arts Event

FOCUS

No. 2, Spring 2008 | Office of Undergraduate Discovery Programs | University of Houston

Glass Mountain, the new undergraduate literary journal at UH, has been reaching out to the larger Houston arts community. Contributors and editors read their work as part of the Houston Society for the Performing Arts (SPA) Performance Prelude Series on January 12, 2008.

Editors Melissa Martinez and Franke Varca, and contributors James Davis and Sarah Pacha read to an audience of over 100 people in the Cullen Alcove of the Wortham Center before NPR This American Life Host Ira Glass' performance of Radio Stories and Other Stories for a sold out audience. SPA patrons, members of InPrint, and Glass Mountain Faculty Advisor Dr. Lynn Voskuil were among those present.

Glass Mountain was launched in spring of 2007 by a group of undergraduate students. The journal is released every spring and fall semester, showcasing the best fiction, poetry, creative non-fiction, and art UH's undergraduate student body has to offer, as well as craft interviews with faculty and visiting writers.

Learn more about Glass Mountain at:
www.uh.edu/glassmountain

Photos courtesy of Regina Vigil

FOCUS highlights University of Houston student achievements in research and creative activity. To submit a highlight or learn more about the UH Discovery-Based Learning Initiative, please visit: www.uh.edu/discovery.

Learning Collaborating Mentoring Connecting Transforming

through DISCOVERY

