Using VISTAs for Sustainable CBPR Initiatives

What are VISTAs? Volunteers in Service to America (VISTAs) are government-stipended grass roots leaders trained to build capacity in their communities. They can support community research in a wide range of cultures, methods, and situations over years. They are paid by of your tax dollars. The Center for Faith and Health Initiatives has experienced great benefits working with them and looks forward to sharing some discoveries about these research collaborations. See the websites the Corporation for National and Community Service http://www.nationalservice.gov/ and the Center www.CenterforFaithandHealth.org.

Karen Hahn, PhD, RN, ANP
Executive Director
Center for Faith and Health Initiatives

Building Healthy Communities
www.CenterforFaithandHealth.org
832-567-8316
14610 Wind Lawn Dr.
Houston, TX 77040