

TOURO COLLEGE --- NEW YORK CITY GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK ANNOUNCES FULL-TIME FACULTY POSITION in SOCIAL WORK RESEARCH

The Touro College Graduate School of Social Work, a recently established school of social work in New York City registered by the New York State Education Department and nationally accredited by the Council on Social Work Education, invites nominations and applications for a faculty position in Social Work Research at the rank of Associate Professor.

The Graduate School of Social Work is building a strong core faculty and is seeking a new faculty member with major teaching responsibilities in social work research. The successful candidate will assume the role of chair of social work research and provide academic leadership in developing the research professional curriculum area. In addition to teaching and curriculum development, other duties may include teaching in another professional curriculum area, student advisement, grant development, and college and community-wide service. Faculty members are expected to be active participants in all aspects of the development of the MSW program.

This appointment will begin as of July 1, 2011. Applicants must have a MSW and a doctorate in social work or a related discipline. A record of teaching, scholarship, and practice experience is required.

Touro College serves a diverse student body with multiple work and family responsibilities, who take classes in the evening and on week-ends. The Touro College Graduate School of Social Work is committed to educating excellent and diverse social workers for clinical practice in the multicultural and multiracial urban community of Metropolitan New York City. The Graduate School of Social Work offers courses in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and the successful candidate will have teaching responsibilities in both locations.

Touro College offers a very competitive salary. Touro College Graduate School of Social Work is committed to increasing faculty diversity and encourages applications from people of diverse cultures, races, ethnicities, and sexual orientation.
