Understanding Hospice Benefits Can Eliminate Medicare Fraud

Presented by: Special Agent Christine Finnegan

Office of Inspector General, Dept. of Health and Human Services

Hospice care helps terminally ill beneficiaries continue life with minimal disruption.

Benefits include pain control, symptom management, and counseling for beneficiaries and their families to help make the last days of a beneficiary's life as comfortable as possible. This type of care is important, yet hospice care in the Medicare program does not escape the problems of fraud, waste, and abuse.
