

The Rise of Neo-Fascism

A Live-Streamed & In-Person Symposium Sponsored by:

The Department of Comparative Cultural Studies and Liberal Studies

Co-Sponsored by:

Center for Mexican American and Latino/a Studies,
Department of English, Department of History, German Studies, India Studies, Italian Studies, Project on Race and Capitalism, Women's Gender and Sexuality Studies

This symposium will assess the dangerous upsurge of neo-fascism over recent years. We will examine not only the increasing expression of hostile and outlandish far-right ideologies, including many that are explicitly fascist, but also organized (and frequently armed) political movements, organizations, and militias. These political formations commonly combine extreme nationalism, racism, anti-immigrant hostility, an authoritarian contempt for liberal democracy and the rule of law, and an avowed commitment to political violence. Foremost, our task requires an analysis of the socio-political characteristics of fascism as both a historical and contemporary phenomenon. We are primarily concerned with the core ideological values mobilized to solicit public support and legitimate its institutional consolidation through liberal democratic political and juridical processes, including elections. This goal also demands the examination and critique of historical fascism's socio-economic premises, including its origins in the social conditions of cataclysmic capitalist economic crisis and its profound affinities with colonialism and militarism. Further, our challenge is to comprehend fascism through a framework of analysis and critique that is not reducible to or trapped by its historical antecedents. Indeed, we may find it productive and illuminating to identify historical antecedents not ordinarily recognized as fascism. Finally, we aim to identify the distinctive features of fascism, as both ideology and practice, and explore what precisely is new about "neo"-fascism in order to better understand how it operates in contemporary society on a global scale.

Speakers:

Nicholas De Genova, University of Houston
Gerald Horne, University of Houston
Sarasij Majumder, University of Houston
David McNally, University of Houston
Alberto Toscano, Goldsmiths, University of London
Nancy Beck Young, University of Houston

Hosted by:

Luca Oliva, University of Houston

Comparative Cultural Studies
College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences

Event Livestream:
from 12-2:00 PM
bit.ly/trnf2023

Classrooms and Business Building
(CBB) Room 108

Friday, March 31, 2023

12:00 - 4:15 PM