

CMAS now in IUPLR

We are very pleased to announce that the Board of Directors of the Inter-University Program of Latino Research has unanimously selected the Center for Mexican American Studies as one of their member institutions.

IUPLR is a national consortium of university-based centers dedicated to the advancement of the Latino intellectual presence in the United States. The Center for Mexican American Studies is now part of a national network of scholars whose efforts increase the availability of policy-relevant research focused on Latinos. Participation in this network of scholars will also promote collaborations between centers across the country. We appreciate your support. The high standard of excellence in scholarship that you have achieved assured this outcome.

For more information on the Inter-University Program of Latino Research, click here.