

This exciting and timely course will focus on the current dynamics of Mexican immigration to the United States; an issue that has gained much saliency in the media and among elected officials throughout the country. The course will look into the causes of Mexican immigration and the various political interest groups involved in finding fair and just alternatives to our current immigration policies. Other groups will also be discussed such as Central American immigrants. The course will also take a special look at the growing indigenous Mexican and Central American immigrants migrating to the United States and their integration to society in the United States.

● FILMS

● GUEST SPEAKERS

● SMALL GROUP
DISCUSSIONS

● FIELDTRIPS

2012 Spring Course

MAS 3342: Section Number 22083

Mexican Immigration to the US

Mondays

5:30-8:30 P.M.

Room: AH 304