

The Department of Political Science and the Office of the Provost Global Strategies and Studies
Invite you to a Roundtable on:

Political Risk in the Global Economy

10: 30 am
February 12, 2016

Kiva Room
Farrish Hall

Political risk has become a contested topic in current political, business and academic circles. Wars, coups, terrorism, human rights violations, humanitarian crises, political change, instability, and perverse government interference in economic activities have the potential to impact interstate relations, political interactions, and the wellbeing of individuals in all corners of the world. We have summoned experts on international relations to discuss how governments respond to the challenges created by political risk in the current era of globalization.

Chaired by:

Jaime Ortiz, PhD, Vice-Provost, Global Strategies and Studies, UH

Panelists:

William R. Clark, Charles Puryear Professor of Liberal Arts and Political Science Department Head, Texas A&M University

Edward D. Mansfield, Hum Rosen Professor of Political Science, University of Pennsylvania

Duncan Snidal, Professor of International Relations and Director of Research Training, Nuffield College, Oxford University

Pablo M. Pinto, Kenneth Lay Chair in Political Science, UH

Sponsored by:

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON | GSS

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON | POLITICAL SCIENCE

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON | CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE STUDIES