

Student Employee Readiness: Are They Prepared?

DSAESPRACTICE has put together a catalog of digital resources around Student Employee Readiness. We hope that they can help give you more insight regarding what preparedness looks like for student employees, ways you can support and help your student employees grow and resources available here on our campus.

About Student Employee Readiness:

Student Employees are students who work within a department on a college campus while completing courses at the University. Students who work in these positions gain valuable experiences that will aid them as they prepare for careers after college. Students are often able to gain transferable skills, networking opportunities, and an increased connection to campus outside of the classroom. The overall goal is always for student employees to leave the university with skills that have prepared them for their next step.

Video/Podcast Resources:

Student Employee Readiness: Are They Prepared?

This podcast discusses student employee readiness at the University of Houston.

Digital Media Resources:

Employment the Much Needed Ultimate Student Learning Outcome

Employers Identify Four “Must Have” Career Readiness Competencies

University Resources and Services:

University Career Services - UH

Scarlet Seals of Excellence - UH