Social Engagement as Creative Work

Inspire visions of American Government and be a "creative leader" in Houston high schools

This course will be a service learning experience that puts the concept of "creative citizens" into practice. Students will help bring ideas from inspiration to realization by developing our partnership with five local high schools in the "grand challenge" of social inequality. We will think about our civic engagement practice through a variety of critical and creative prisms and hold a virtual art competition to showcase the high school students' visions of American government.
