A Life with Music and the Performance Arts

Do you love music? Are you curious to learn more about live performance in theatre, dance, and music? Do you want to explore the great arts organizations in Houston? Led by faculty of the Moores School of Music, The Exploring the Performance Arts LLC engages with a wide variety of music, theatre, and dance performances on campus and across the city of Houston.

Did you play in the marching band in high school, star in the school play, or take dance lessons since you were five? If you thought you had to leave behind those creative pursuits that brought you joy and formed your core friendships because they don't fit into your career and major plans, the Performing Arts Life Living Learning Community is for you.

Why Should I Join this LLC?

Live together in this harmonious on-campus haven, dedicated to engagement with music, theatre, and dance. The Performing Arts Life LLC unites students from all UH majors, both in and outside the McGovern College of the Arts, who have fond memories of the hard work, the collaborative excitement, and the true bonding that comes through live performance.

How Will I Benefit?

- We prioritize excellence in academic success, personal performance arts experience, and peer collaboration.
- We provide a cohesive and enriched academic and creative residential experience, where all majors strive to a strong performance in class and out of class.
- Our community coordinates invitations to special performing arts presentations, behind the scenes experiences, and off-campus trips to Houston events.
