JOB OPPORTUNITY POSTING

Job Title: Director of Field Education

Employer/Agency: San Jose State University

Job Description: Responsible for overall coordination, implementation, and evaluation of the Field Education program for the graduate and undergraduate programs. Provide leadership in recruitment, development, and approval of internships at local, regional, and international sites. Develop and oversee implementation of various programs associated with the department (e.g. student and new internship instructors' orientations and special projects). Oversee and engage in the process of assigning BSW and MSW students to internships. Advise students when indicated on field education issues. Identify, hire, supervise and evaluate Faculty Field Liaisons (FFLs). Interface with affiliated internship sites to promote collaborative relationships and to mediate issues that require departmental attention. Develop field education curriculum and engage in teaching seminars and courses associated with program. Participate on various School of Social Work Committees and chair the Field Practicum Committee. Develop and implement program assessment in conjunction with faculty related to re-accreditation requirements. Develop and integrate electronic/online programming within the department and learning opportunities for students and field work instructors. Attend regularly scheduled meetings with SSW Director. Other duties and responsibilities as assigned by the SSW Director.

Qualifications: Applicants must hold a MSW from an accredited university, and knowledge of and experience in social work field education. Two years post-master's practice experience is required. Teaching experience in the area of social work preferred. Practice and/or teaching experience with ethnic populations are highly desirable. Supervisory experience is desirable. Applicants should have awareness of and sensitivity to the educational goals of a multicultural population.
