Component Area for which the course is being proposed (check one):

Communication

American History

Mathematics

Government/Political

Science

Language, Philosophy, & Culture

Social & Behavioral Science

Creative Arts

Component Area Option

Life & Physical Sciences

Competency areas addressed by the course (refer to appended chart for competencies that are required and optional in each component area):

Critical Thinking

Teamwork

Communication Skills

Empirical & Quantitative Skills

Social Responsibility

Personal Responsibility

Because we will be assessing student learning outcomes across multiple core courses, assessments assigned in your course must include assessments of the core competencies. For each competency checked above, indicated the specific course assignment(s) which, when completed by students, will provide evidence of the competency. Provide detailed information, such as copies of the paper or project assignment, copies of individual test items, etc. A single assignment may be used to provide data for multiple competencies.

Critical Thinking:

Sample assignment:

Students will write a five-page paper on the Cuban Revolution by examining two primary sources. Fidel Castro, "The Duty of a Revolutionary is to Make the Revolution: The Second Declaration of Havana," in Lewis Hanke and Jane Rausch eds., People and Issues in Latin American History: From Independence to the Present (Princeton: Markus Wiener Publishers, 2006), pp. 315-26

Fidel Castro , "History Will Absolve me," Castro Internet Archive, www.marxists.org

Students will be asked to answer the following questions: How does Castro define the concept of revolution? How does Castro portray Cuba's history? What are Castro's political, social, and economic goals?

Communication Skills:

Students will be required to efficiently convey the answers to these questions , showing conceptual sophistication and analytical depth.

Empirical & Quantitative Skills:

Inclusion in the core is contingent upon the course being offered and taught at least once every other academic year. Courses will be reviewed for renewal every 5 years.

The department understands that instructors will be expected to provide student work and to participate in university-wide assessments of student work. This could include, but may not be limited to, designing instruments such as rubrics, and scoring work by students in this or other courses. In addition, instructors of core courses may be asked to include brief assessment activities in their course.

Course Description

This course examines the history of modern Latin America by analyzing key processes in the development of the region: the formation of modern states after independence, the end to slavery, the consolidation of populist regimes, the expansion of revolutionary movements, the establishment of military dictatorships, the return to democracy, and the current expansion of neo-liberal reforms and globalization. By analyzing these processes, this course explores crucial aspects of modern Latin America including the Mexican Revolution, Peronism, and guerrilla warfare; investigates key historical actors such as Emiliano Zapata, Fidel Castro, Che Guevara, Eva Perón, Augusto Sandino, Augusto Pinochet, and Hugo Chavez; and reflects on the role of the political elites, women, workers, peasants, students, and racial and ethnic groups in the construction of modern history. The course also presents a variety of conceptual categories in a historical perspective, including nationalism, postcolonialism, populism, liberalism, socialism, imperialism, neo-liberalism, and globalization.

Learning Objectives

1. Increase students' knowledge of the modern history of Latin American countries
2. Reflect on the role of diverse social actors, especially political elites, women, students, peasants, workers, and racial and ethnic groups in the development of key historical processes in Latin America
3. Deepen conceptual and historical understanding of gender, race, and class in modern Latin American history
4. Stimulate independent and critical thinking
5. Relate historical issues with contemporary problems

Course Requirements

BEHAVIOR IN THE CLASSROOM: Students are expected to attend class daily and to arrive on time. Students must not engage in any disrupting behavior—for example, talking during lectures, texting, arriving late, leaving early, reading newspapers, etc. Disruptive students will be asked to leave the classroom. The professor reserves the right to drop disruptive students from the course. Please turn off all electronic devices before the beginning of class, including cell phones, iPods, pagers, etc. Voice recorders are not allowed.

Laptop computers ARE NOT ALLOWED.

Texting and phone checking ARE NOT ALLOWED. Keep your phone in your bag or pocket and leave it there until the end of class. No phones on your desk. I will deduct points to students who do not respect this policy.

BLACKBOARD LEARN IS AN EXTREMELY IMPORTANT COMPONENT OF THIS COURSE: Students must check Blackboard regularly for updates and announcements regarding assignments, readings, and general messages.

EMAIL ETIQUETTE: Since you are communicating with professors and classmates in an academic environment, address professors and students directly by name or title, choose an appropriate greeting, be polite, and sign your emails. The professor WILL NOT reply emails that do not meet these conditions. More on email etiquette is posted on Blackboard.

Take notes in class: The professor WILL NOT post lectures online. Students must ask classmates for their notes if they are unable to attend class.

Students with a disability or other condition that requires special treatment must inform the instructor the first week of classes so that appropriate arrangements can be made. DO NOT WAIT UNTIL THE FIRST ASSIGNMENT TO PRESENT PAPERWORK.

Attendance is taken at the beginning of each class. If you are late and arrive after I call your name, you will lose the attendance points.
